Jake Shimabukuro

Date: November 10, 2012 - November 10, 2012

Time: 7:30 pm

Performer Series - New Directions

Called the world's greatest ukulele player and the Jimi Hendrix of the instrument, Jake Shimabukuro is known for his complex finger work and renditions in jazz and rock. A native of Hawaii, Shimabukuro has been playing the traditional instrument of four strings and two octaves since he was four years old. With his innovative adaptations of strumming, finger picking, and fretboard tapping, he takes the instrument to places that other musicians only dream of. For more information visit www.jakeshimabukuro.com

10,000 Maniacs

Date: May 18, 2013 - May 18, 2013

Time: 7:30 pm

Performer Series - New Directions

Due to a band member medical emergency, this concert was POSTPONED. It has been rescheduled to Saturday, May 18th. Current ticket holders will have those tickets honored at the rescheduled concert. New tickets are also available.

One of the most critically acclaimed bands of the past three decades, 10,000 Maniacs defined college rock and created the first wave of alternative rock bands. Writing and performing powerful, danceable, and socially original material in and around their hometown of Jamestown, New York, the group has toured extensively. Their music has a wide following of alternate rock fans and includes such tunes as chart-topping These Are the Days.

Join us on the west lawn for a pre-event party. Schnitzelbank will be selling food and beverages.
